UNIT 2

SCHOOL LIFE AND THE WORLD AROUND US

Cover p. 25

Time: 5 mins

- Ask pupils to look at the picture of the English school on p. 25.
- Ask: How is our school different / the same with this school? Did you know most pupils in the UK wear uniforms? What are the pros and cons of wearing uniforms at school?
- Pros: No need to buy a lot of clothes, no competition with the other pupils, no worry about what to wear, easy for the teachers to spot the pupils when visiting places
- Cons: It is said to suppress free expression through fashion choices, brings uniformity etc.

TAPESCRIPT

Girl 1: How often do you get excited about your school subjects?

Girl 2: I'm excited about our school newspaper! Do you have a school newspaper?

Boy: Where do you do your homework? At school or at home?

LESSON 1

SCHOOL LIFE AND FEELINGS

Aims of the Lesson

- a. to familiarize pupils with everyday routines and the use of the Simple Present
- b. to discuss pupils' problems and every day school life

A. LEAD-IN

PB page: 26 / Time: 10 mins

Brainstorm in class the idea of putting together a newspaper or quarterly newsletter in English.

- What would be the difficulties?
- What should it include?
- What would make it interesting for the pupils?
- Who could they circulate the newspaper to?

KEY 1c, 2a, 3b

B. READING

PB page: 26 / Time: 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 9

Pre-Reading

- With your pupils go over what a newspaper looks like. Highlight that it is made up of headlines, different articles, adverts, announcements and a variety of other text types.
- Focus on scan reading techniques. Explain to the students that if you are good at scanning, you read a lot faster. In "scan" reading you are reading quickly, focussing only on looking for specific information. Pupils must understand they do not need to know the meaning of every word (and this is difficult for them to appreciate).

While-Reading.

Individually, pupils do the following tasks:

- The pupils need to understand what each item represents.
- Also, what are the key bits of information each piece of writing gives.

After-Reading

Check the pupils were fine about not understanding every word. Go over what the 3 texts represent.

ACTIVITY BOOK:

UNIT 2 • LESSON 1 • ACTIVITY A • p. 11

Pupils write the sentences using the prompts. Sample p. 125.

C. WRITING

KEY a. angry, b. bored, c. happy, d. sorry, e. excited, f. sad

Whole class follow up: Can the pupils guess why the children might be feeling that way? Ask them to make short sentences orally, e.g. She feels happy because it's her birthday today.

D1. SPEAKING

They can choose, as a class, to do either one or the other project. The first is about feelings and the second about the canteen.

Get them to work in small groups. If they choose the first one, it is important they practice at expressing their feelings clearly before the presentation.

PB page: 32 / Time: 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 11

Pre-Reading

Introduce the activity by saying we all live differently and that, leading onto the next activity, it is interesting to do surveys to see how different people do different things. Surveys help us understand trends and if there are negative trends these can then be rectified.

While-Reading

In pairs, child A acts as the market researcher and child B as himself. Child A reads and ticks off the answers. The roles are then reversed. The answers are then used in the survey to follow.

G. WRITING & SPEAKING

PB page: 33 / Time: 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 10, 11

→ Cross-curricular link: MATHS.

Teacher introduces the activity by explaining what a pie chart is: using different colours within the same pie, it helps understand information at a glance. This is linked to what pupils will do in their maths classes.

- A key aspect of the pie chart is to be able to convert the total data into fractions. The pupils need to understand that, for example, if you have 30 pupils, 5 of whom give answer A, 5 answer B and 20 answer C, two thirds of the pie will be one colour and the remaining part will be divided into 2 equal parts, with two more different colours ($20+5+5=30$).
- To gather all the data, ask the pupils to raise their hands for the replies to each question. Then count and record answers on the blackboard.
- On separate pieces of paper, the pupils then convert the answers for each question into pie charts. To speed things up, teacher should divide class into 2 groups, where one half does 4 questions and the other half the other 4. Make sure they use different colours for the different sections of the pie.

CUSTOMS AROUND THE WORLD

Aims of the Lesson

- a. to revise and consolidate Simple Present
- b. to talk about customs and traditions in England, Greece and around the world

A. LEAD-IN

PB page: 34 / Time: 15 mins

→ Cross-curricular link: GEOGRAPHY.

- Ask pupils to think of some strange habits that they may know or may have heard of from their parents or grandparents.
- Be open to ideas from pupils who come from more remote areas or other countries where old traditions are still alive.
- Encourage them to talk about these in class even if they use some Greek words to communicate

Presentation. Allow pupils a few minutes to read the text and make sure they have understood by asking questions like:

- What do hotel managers do in Japan? What do people eat in Korea? What do Muslims do before they enter a mosque?

- What happens in England and the USA when it is somebody's birthday? How do they name the third child of a family in America?

Practice. Continue by asking further questions like:

- Do people in Greece/Albania/Russia (& other countries) have any special dishes?
- What do you do when you enter a church? (Light a candle etc.)
- Whose names do the children usually take in your family?

B. READING & WRITING

PB page: 34 / Time: 20 mins / TB Introduction p. 9, 10

Turn to Appendix p. 135

- Ask pupils to look at the chart and focus their attention on the customs and habits of English people. Are there any similarities/differences? Ask them to talk about them. Do they find anything strange? What is that?
- Encourage the pupils to work in groups and write down about their own manners and habits. Have them present their work in class.

PROJECT

PB page: 34 / Time: 30 mins / TB Introduction p. 15

→ Cross-curricular link: GEOGRAPHY.

To be done in small groups. Make sure the pupils have all the necessary equipment to create the posters: scissors, glue, cardboard and the realia for the project. Encourage pupils from non-Greek backgrounds to talk about their own national customs.

The photo on the right, is of a traditional sport from Scotland called the "Tossing of the Caber". The man who can throw the bare tree trunk the farthest is the winner. The tree trunk is about 18 ft long and weighs about 115 pounds, that is about 52 kgs. This sport is practised at the Highland Gatherings Games, events in Scotland lasting a few days where different clans come together in the open air and there is dancing, traditional sports, animal shows and lots of eating and drinking.

CULTURAL CORNER

→ Cross-curricular link: GEOGRAPHY & HISTORY.

- The curiosity of your students might have been aroused by the photo of "The Tossing of the Caber" (see above) at a Highland Games show.
- Scotland is a country very rich in ancient traditions which are unique. Ask your students to tell you what they know about the country, its people, its history, its monsters!
- This is a text which tells you a lot about some of the traditions of Scotland. Some of them you may know, hopefully some of them will be new to you!

CULTURAL CORNER

SCOTTISH CUSTOMS AND TRADITIONS

The visitor to Scotland should be aware of the customs of the country as otherwise they may be confused by the behaviour of the Scots, which may seem odd at times if one is unaware of the traditions and beliefs which lie behind them.

There are a number of important things the visitor should know about including the Clan System, the Highland games, Hogmanay (the most important festival in the Scottish calendar), Burns Night and above all, at least when visiting the highlands, religion in Scotland. This is particularly important when visiting Caithness and Sutherland where religious observance is taken very seriously and great offence can be caused by the careless visitor who does not observe the rules.

FEUDS

Feuding (particularly in the highlands) between the clans, and between different religious groups is a long-standing tradition in Scotland and is deeply ingrained in the character of the people. The animosity between the supporters of the two Glasgow football teams (Celtic and Rangers) is a modern manifestation of the Scots' deep psychological need for a fight.

Some Clans have long standing feuds with other Clans, sometimes for good historical reasons, which have become almost a tradition. The most well known example of this is probably the long-standing hatred of the McDonalds for the Campbells, which dates back to the Massacre of Glencoe. Although centuries have passed and some McDonalds are ostensibly best friends with some Campbells, so deeply rooted is the subconscious mistrust that unaccountable rows will break out between these 'friends' for no apparent reason.

Many Scottish Clans have internal feuds and individual family members sometimes have the worst feuds of all. Feuds are so customary and basic to life amongst some Scots (particularly some Highland families) that it is not unknown for a Scot to die from lack of someone to fight with. This is particularly true for certain women who will keep up an almost demented lifetime feud against another person for a perceived slight or wrong that any other human being would forget. The phrase 'hell hath no fury like a woman scorned' undoubtedly originated in Scotland!

THE HIGHLAND GAMES

The Highland games is a curious spectacle consisting mostly of big hairy men in skirts and vests chucking big logs and swinging iron balls on chains round their heads. These activities are known respectively as tossing the caber and hammer throwing and take place at events called "highland gatherings" - the last remnants of the "gathering of the clans" (a good excuse for fistcuffs, of which many Scots are fond, in the old days).

The other main attraction is the Pipe bands. These are groups of men (in modern times it can be both men and women); each group has matching skirts, fancy jackets and strange little hats. They march around squeezing the air out of big tartan bags (known as bagpipes) and blowing it in again through a pipe attached to the bag. This results in a horrible racket known as "the skirl o' the pipes" which is almost indistinguishable from the noise made by the haggis during the mating season. These pipe bands often turn out to be Australians, not Scots at all! Seriously though, the pipe bands are not to be missed if you are visiting Scotland. There is, in my humble opinion, no sound in the world more moving than a good solo piper or a good pipe band, many's the time I've been moved to tears.
