- Ask pupils to look at the pictures. These are representative of the main topics of this unit.

LESSON 1 – SHE HAS HELPED SAVE GORILLAS!

Aims

a. Presentation of the Present Perfect: Affirmative form.

A. LEAD IN

Page: 110/Time: 10 mins

→ Cross-curricular link: SCIENCE

- Give the pupils some information about gorillas.
- Did they know the story about a famous London zoo female gorilla that a few years ago, because her male partner had died, spent several weeks weeping? Many Londoners visited London Zoo to grieve with her. It shows how close gorillas are to human beings.
- Do the pupils find gorillas amusing, interesting, why?
- Have they seen films about gorillas? How were gorillas portrayed?
- Have they seen the movie "King Kong"? How was the gorilla portrayed there?

B. READING

Page: 110/Time: 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 9

→ Cross-curricular link: SCIENCE

Pre-Reading:

- Continuing on from the Cover Page, you can give pupils some information on Dian Fossey. She was a naturalist who in the 1967 moved to Africa from San Francisco and dedicated her life to the protection of the mountain gorillas between Rwanda and Congo. The gorillas were under threat of extinction from poachers. Explain "poachers". In 1985 she was murdered in her cabin in the African mountains – the crime is still unresolved.
- Discuss the role of zoos. Have pupils been to a zoo? Maybe those from Attiki have been to Spata. How do zoos obtain their animals? This story explains how zoos used to obtain animals in the past. On most occasions they used to be obtained illegally or unethically.
- Ask the pupils what they might learn from this story.
- Comprehension questions:
 - ◆ Where did Dian Fossey work?
 - ◆ Who wanted baby gorillas?
 - ◆ How did other countries get baby gorillas?
 - ◆ Did Dian Fossey stop all baby gorillas leaving Africa?

While-Reading

- Pupils read on their own.
- Answer questions on any difficult vocabulary
- Pinpoint to pupils where Dian Fossey worked on world map at the end of PB.

Post-Reading

- What more have the pupils learnt from this story?
- Do they think the work of Dian Fossey was important?
- Do they think gorillas are safe now?

KEY to True/False: 1. True, 2. False, 3. False, 4. False, 5. True.

GRAMMAR FOCUS

Page: 111/Time: 10 mins / TB

Introduction p. 12

- Study the forms in the examples and deduce how the Present Perfect is formed.
- Point out the meaning of this tense is quite unique to English. In Greek it indicates a simple past meaning. In English it usually indicates finished events connected to the present.
- It is often used with adverbs of time such as since, yet, already, never, ever etc.

ACTIVITY BOOK

UNIT 9 – LESSON 1 – ACTIVITY A – p. 55

KEY

Pre-Writing

Elicit from pupils whether they have done some important things in their lives.

UNIT 9 – LESSON 1 – ACTIVITY C – p. 56
Free answers. Sample answers p. 127.

E. SPEAKING

Pre-Speaking

- The pupils need to do some research at home, with their families. Grandparents are a good source of interesting information, sometimes stories which the children could have never imagined!
- Get the pupils to spend time with their grandparents or, if not in the same city, to call them up saying they are doing some research for their English classes.
- Pupils need to find stories of achievements and bring these stories back to class.

While-Speaking

Pupils share their stories with each other, first in small groups and then, we suggest, the most interesting should be shared with the whole class.

Post-Speaking

Teacher should draw morals from the best stories. She should present such people and their actions as models of good, upright living, beneficial to people around us and society in general!

F. PORTFOLIO

Page: 113/Time: 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 14

- This is a good activity for pupils to appreciate how important a positive contribution to the school community is.

- First the pupils think about their personal achievements and what they want to be remembered for.
- Then the teacher should move it to a classroom level.
- The classroom achievements should be put up on a poster, something for the class to be proud of.

A. LEAD-IN

Page: 114/Time: 10 mins

→ Cross-curricular link: GEOGRAPHY

- From the map of the world at the back of the Pupil's Book, show pupils where Dubai is.
- Explain some of the characteristics of Dubai: very hot climate because it is on the edge of the desert, very modern and pro-western state. It has become a popular holiday resort. One must remember it is an Arab state so customs will be of a typical Arab country – see Cultural Corner for more information on these.
- Pupils fill in Yes/No answers.
- It is unlikely many children will have been to Dubai. Some may have been to either an artificial snow centre or a skating rink. Skating Rinks are now common in cities during the Christmas and New Year period. Explain that, because there isn't enough snow, in many mountain resorts throughout Europe they have sprayed artificial snow. It will; be the same as used in Dubai within a big air-conditioned environment.

B. LISTENING

Page: 114/Time: 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 10

Pre-Listening

See if pupils can guess what are some of the things Mark did when he visited Dubai. These include visiting the artificial snow centre, shopping, seeing the beautiful buildings including the famous hotel which looks like a sail, maybe going on an expedition into the desert.

While-Listening

Pupils confirm their guesses about Dubai.

Tapescript

Ben: Hi, Mark! What's all this luggage?

Mark: Oh, hi, Ben. We've just come back from a trip to Dubai.

Ben: Oh, great! I've already been there with my Dad. We went last month. How did you like it?

Mark: It was fantastic! I've never been to such a great place!

Ben: Did you visit the artificial snow centre?

Mark: Yes. How could we miss that? We went skiing on artificial snow. It was so strange! Outside in the streets it was 50 degrees and we were at minus 5.

Ben: Yes, I felt the same way, too. What about the floating buildings, avenues, towers, shopping malls....

Mark: I've seen them all! They were amazing! Did you see the Burj Al Arab?

Ben: Yes! It's the first time I've seen such a strange building! But it must be extremely expensive to stay in it!

Mark: It must, but do you think the people who stay in it have financial problems or ever look at the prices?

Ben: You are right! Did you see the big limousines! Petrol is cheap so they can afford them. Did you go shopping?

Mark: Sure! Lots of things are cheaper than in England! We've brought back so many things I'll have trouble putting them away. What about you? What have you done these days?

Ben: Well, my parents have gone on a business trip to France for a couple of days and I'm alone in the house except for my sister who has turned the house into a café for her girlfriends. Would you like to come over some time and play with my new Play Station?

Mark: Great idea! And I'll bring over my new Nintendo that I bought in Dubai.

Ben: Ok! See you this afternoon, then?

Mark: Fine! I'll be there at five.

Post-Listening

- What did the pupils know or not know about Dubai?
- Would they be interested in visiting the country and why?

D. READING

Page: 116/Time: 10/ TB Introduction p. 9

→ Cross-curricular link: ART

Pre-Reading

- The text is about Ireland so remind pupils where the country is (they had come across it in Unit 1, Lesson 3).
- Do any of the children enjoy drawing or painting? Have they ever won prizes, for example in their schools? Do they know if the town where they live organizes awards for artwork done by children?
- This competition was set up for the first time in 1955 – what did children do in their free time then, when there was no TV?
- There may be some difficult vocabulary and the teacher would do well to pre-teach this: soapbox carts, creativity, agricultural, categories, prizewinners, ceremony, commemorate, stamps, talents, despite.

While-Reading

Pupils find answers to the true/false questions.

Post-Reading

- KEY 1T, 2F, 3T, 4F, 5T

- Do the children think such a competition should be organised in Greece?
- Would they take part? Discuss.

E. WRITING

Page: 117/Time: 15/ TB Introduction p. 10

- In this activity pupils distinguish between the use of the present perfect and the past simple.
- Have the pupils travelled much? Find out where they have been: towns and places in Greece & outside of Greece.
- Each pupil makes a list of these places and what he/she did there.
- In the first section they list the places without specifying the time – the present perfect is used.

- In the second part, because they talk about “last year” they use the past simple.

ACTIVITY BOOK

UNIT 9 – LESSON 2 – ACTIVITY D – p. 59

KEY

1. have invited, 2. have reserved, 3. didn't know, have you seen, 4. bought, cost, 5. have received, 6. saw, 7. bought, 8. have you ever seen, 9. haven't.

DIFFERENTIATED ACTIVITY p. 85

Same answers.

F. GAME

Page: 117/ Time: 15

- The aim of the game is to promote good actions amongst pupils in the classroom. The activity can be played as a game but, through the pupils being proud of their achievements, it is also a way of encouraging pupils to be more responsible citizens both in the house and in society.
- To the teacher, pupils submit 2 questions of things they would expect good pupils and citizens to have done.
- The teacher puts all the questions together and writes them up on the blackboard. The pupil who has done the most should be the Model Citizen of the Class.

Lesson 3 – NEWSPAPERS & HEADLINES

A. LEAD-IN p. 118

Here are a few examples of interesting and real newspaper headlines, which you might want to share with your pupils:

Lack of Brains has hindered research

Policeman have helped dog bite victim

Four have been battered in fish and chip shop

Goldfish has been saved from drowning

Prisoners have escaped after execution.

B. PROJECT

Page: 118 / Time: 20 & ongoing / TB

Introduction p. 15

MAKING A CLASS NEWSPAPER (IN ENGLISH)

- A list of useful tips is given in the Differentiated Activity p. 149.

- Follow the tips given and the class should be capable of putting together a paper.

CULTURAL CORNER

SOCIAL CUSTOMS IN DUBAI

What are local customs like?

Needless to say, many Arab customs are very different from those in the west, and you should be aware of what you're expected to do and not to do.

Although Arabs are understanding and unlikely to take offence at social blunders, provided they arise from ignorance rather than malice, you will be made far more welcome if you acquaint yourself with local ways of doing things. It's important to remember that you're a foreigner and you must therefore adapt to the customs and social behaviour of the region – not the other way round. In addition to actions and behaviour which are regarded as criminal, there are certain unwritten rules that you must observe in order not to offend local sensibilities.

Dress

There are two distinct types of women's clothing in the region: one for locals, the other for expatriates. Outside the home, most Arab women dress according to religious custom, which means that they must cover most of the body, from head to foot.

Arab men wear the thobe, a loose, ankle-length robe made from fine white cotton (or heavier woollen material in winter). There are different styles of thobe, both in the cut of the cloth and in the fastenings at the neck and front. Perhaps the most distinctive are those worn by the Omanis, which sport a tassel. The thobe can be worn for all occasions, either social or business. An outer cloak, the bisht, is worn on formal occasions and can be very costly, with border embroidery in gold thread and the material itself of the finest quality.

The traditional, distinctive head covering is the guthra, a white or red and white checkered cloth held in place by the agal, a black 'rope' which was originally a camel tether. There are different types of agal: for example, Qataris normally wear a more African-style headdress, with two long 'tails' reaching down the back. Arab men sometimes wear casual dress on very informal occasions or at the beach, but Saudi men are strongly encouraged to wear national dress at all times.

Obviously, foreign men aren't expected to wear Arab garments, and western dress is the norm. Men should avoid wearing shorts and sleeveless shirts in the street, as these are regarded as excessively casual, although with the development of tourism, this attitude is softening. However, suits are rarely worn in the Gulf, except for important business meetings and related social events. Standard wear in the office is a shirt (usually long-sleeved), tie and lightweight trousers.

Terms of Address

The general formal address is 'Sayyed' ('Sir') for a man or 'Sayeeda' (or 'Sayedity') for a woman, followed by the person's full name. Arab women can be addressed as 'Madame'.

Rulers are usually addressed as 'Your Highness' ('Your Majesty' in the case of the King of Saudi Arabia). Senior members of ruling families are called 'Your Excellency' followed by 'Sheikh' (pronounced 'shake' and not 'sheek') and their full name. Government ministers of the ruling line are 'Your Excellency, Minister of . . .' and other ministers simply 'Your Excellency' followed by the full name. Lesser members of ruling families and those in religious authority are addressed as 'Sheikh' followed by their full name.

Greetings

The most common greeting in the Gulf is Salam alaykum ('Peace be upon you'), to which the correct reply is Wa alaykum as-salam ('And upon you be peace'). Other common greetings and the accepted replies are:

Greeting	Meaning	Reply
Ahlan wa sahan	Hello	Ahlan bik
Sabah al-khayr	Good morning / afternoon	Sabah an-nur
Masa al-khayr	Good evening	Masa an-nur

Hands & Feet

You should accept refreshment whenever it's offered, but note that you should always use your right hand for drinking and eating, as the left hand is regarded as unclean (as it's used for 'toilet purposes'). Similarly, you should avoid showing the soles of your shoes or feet, which implies that you think the other person is 'dirt', which is obviously highly offensive. You should therefore keep your feet flat on the ground and not cross your legs.

Other Dos and Don'ts

You should also heed the following warnings:

- Don't offer alcoholic drinks to an Arab, unless you're certain that he drinks alcohol. This can cause great offence.
- Don't walk on a prayer mat or in front of any person at prayer and try not to stare at people who are praying.
- Don't try to enter a mosque without first asking permission. It's unlikely that you will be allowed in.
- In Saudi Arabia, don't try to enter the Holy sites of the areas surrounding Mecca and Medina. The roads are well signposted to notify everybody of this restriction.
- Avoid putting an Arab in a position where he might suffer a 'loss of face' in front of other Arabs. He will appreciate this, if he notices your action.
- Don't beckon to people with a finger, as this is considered particularly impolite. Arabs might use such a gesture to summon a dog.
- Avoid shouting and displays of aggression or drunkenness at all times, as such behaviour is rarely tolerated.
- During Ramadan, don't eat, drink or smoke anywhere where you can be seen by Muslims during the hours of daylight and don't engage in any noisy behaviour or embrace or kiss anyone in public.
