Page: 121/Time: 5 mins.

Ask pupils if they like holidays and why.

- Where do they usually go?
- Who do they go with?
- Where did they go last time?
- Is there anything about holidays they don't like?
- Do they travel abroad?
- Which place would they like to visit? Why?
- Is there a famous attraction they would like to visit?
- Ask pupils to listen to the cassette and say what is happening & where.

Tapescript

Tour guide: Welcome to Greece! How was your trip?

Tourist 1: Will you be visiting the Acropolis?

Tourist 2: I've heard so much about the ancient Greek gods. How many were they?

LESSON 1 – AT THE AIRPORT

Aims

- a. to introduce vocabulary related to the subjects of airports and trips
- b. to revise the verb tenses
- c. to write friendly letters
- d. to encourage pair and group work

A. LEAD-IN

Page 122/Time: 10 mins

Brainstorm the idea of tourists visiting Greece.

- Do pupils think that Greece is an attractive destination?
- What would tourists visit first?

Allow pupils a few seconds to answer the questions in groups (use of L1 accepted).

B. LISTENING

Page 122/Time 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 10

Pre-listening

- Set the scene by explaining that Kostas is at the Athens airport (Eleftherios Venizelos) waiting for Nadine to come from Paris, France. She is going to stay at Kostas' place for a few days, during the summer holidays. The flight from Paris to Athens takes about 3 hours.

- When the two kids meet, a dialogue takes place. Ask pupils to guess what Kostas might be saying and to note down their suggestions in their notebooks. You might need to explain a few words such as spinning and aubergines.
- Explain that they need to write down expressions used to welcome a friend, to express sympathy and to make people feel comfortable.

While-listening

Individually: The pupils listen to the cassette and check their answers.

Tapescript

(Speakers: Flight 307 from Paris has just landed. Passengers are kindly requested to proceed to the baggage reclaim area Noise)

Kostas: Welcome, Nadine. How was your flight?

Nadine: All right, mostly, but a bit bumpy over the Alps. My head is still spinning.

Kostas: Oh, I'm sorry to hear that. I hope you'll get over it soon. Mark's flight is arriving any minute now and we can all go home. Mum has prepared moussaka for lunch.

Nadine: Moussaka? What's that?

Kostas: It's a Greek traditional dish made with potatoes and aubergines.

Nadine: Mmm, I'm not crazy about aubergines

Kostas: Don't worry. There's also cheese pie and meat balls. You French love cheese, don't you?

Nadine: Yes, we do. It sounds delicious. I feel hungry already.

Kostas: Ok, we've got a little time to kill until Mark's flight arrives. There are some nice shops over there. Let me help you with your baggage.....

Post-listening

KEY

1. Do you like moussaka? 2. It's made of potatoes and aubergines. Do you like aubergines? 3. Do you like cheese pie and meatballs?

Ask pupils to reiterate the polite expressions Kostas used to welcome Nadine and to make her feel comfortable. They can use these phrases themselves to make sentences to welcome their friends.

C. VOCABULARY

Page: 123/Time: 10 mins / TB Introduction p. 13

You read the polite expressions in the left column and ask pupils to locate them in Nadine's words (B. Listening, p. 122). This will help them deduce their meaning. Then ask them to do the matching.

KEY 1a, 2c, 3e, 4d, 5b

D. ROLE - PLAY

Page 123 / Time 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 11

- Set the scene by reminding pupils that the three friends are still at Eleftherios Venizelos. Mark has just arrived. The flight from London to Athens takes about 3.5 hours.
- Form groups of three and let the pupils decide on the roles and on the clues each pupil is going to use. They can make their own suggestions if they like.
- Remind pupils to use the expressions given in task C.

E. MEDIATION

Page 123 / Time 10 mins

In mediation activities learners should not translate from the Greek. They only relay some information from the Greek text, chart, timetable etc. and perhaps use some information based on their own experience and knowledge. The topic of our mediation task is related to the learners' social environment and to common social situations they have faced or may face in the future. Learners are required to focus on the topic and produce the output they have been asked to.

- Inform pupils that this is a piece of the original announcement board found at Eleftherios Venizelos and it is similar to the announcement boards found at all the international airports of the world.
- Remind them that they should not translate. Instead, they should read the board silently and use the appropriate information in an answer formed in English.

ACTIVITY BOOK: Unit 10 – Lesson 1 – Activity B p. 60

KEY

1. Flight OA 165 from Athens to Frankfurt leaves at 8:15 and arrives in Frankfurt at 10:25 on the 15th of March.

3. There is a flight leaving from Frankfurt on March 14th at 11:15. It arrives in Athens at 16:15. It's flight OA166.

If you want to travel from Frankfurt to Athens you will fly in an airplane type B737.

GRAMMAR FOCUS

Page 124 / Time 10 mins / TB Introduction p. 12

- Go over the examples in the chart and highlight the time prepositions and expressions used for each tense.
- If needed, use the grammar section at the back of the book to remind the form and the use of the tenses.
- Then, ask pupils to put the letters of the tenses in the right place.

F. READING & WRITING

Page 124 / Time 30 mins / TB Introduction pp. 9, 10

Pre-reading & writing

- With your pupils go over what a letter looks like. Remind them how we start a letter (Dear ...), what opening and closing remarks we use.
- Indicate that this is Olaf's first letter to any pen pal who would like to answer. He had to include personal information (name, age etc.) to introduce himself but there is no Dear opening. Pupils should follow the same conventions with their letter.

While-reading

Individually: Pupils try to find what exactly Olaf's hobby is.

Post-reading

Encourage pupils to start corresponding with teenagers from abroad. www.kidslink.org may help you give your pupils some ideas on how to do that.

Pre-writing

- Do any of your pupils have a pen pal?
- If they did what would they ask them?
- What are their hobbies?

While-writing

Check that pupils apply the letter writing conventions previously discussed.

Post-writing

Read some of the letters in class.

CROSS-CURRICULAR PROJECT

→ Cross-curricular link: GEOGRAPHY, HISTORY, SCIENCE

A. HOW TO PRESENT A PLACE: ATHENS AIRPORT

Page 125 / Time 20 mins / TB Introduction p. 15

Get the pupils to work in small groups. Each pupil will be responsible for one subject:

history of the place, the area, the name, the buildings, the facilities etc. www.aia.gr is the official site of Athens International Airport where you may find authentic information. Pupils may also put photos (family photos could be accepted) together with information, maps, charts etc. on cardboard and present them in class.

Differentiated Pedagogy (): Appendix, page 150, Activity A. More competent pupils can use both Athens and London tables and present a comparison between the two airports.

B. A PRESENTATION BASED ON YOUR SENSES p. 125

Pupils must be able to "paint" a picture using their senses.

LESSON 2 – VISITING PLACES

Aims

- to introduce prepositional phrases which help us describe an object
- to encourage pupils to exchange opinions and participate in debates
- to revise comparisons of adjectives
- to familiarize pupils with works of art
- to listen for specific information
- to encourage pupils speak and write about holidays
- to revise letter writing

A. LEAD-IN

Page 126 / Time 5 mins

Initiate discussion on tourism.

- Ask pupils to bring post cards and photos of different places and works of art and stick them on the walls.
- Tourism is very important for the Greek economy. Why?
- How important is it for people to visit a place? Is it only a matter of relaxation and holidays? Do you think that modern people should get to know other cultures and civilizations? Why?

B. READING

Page 126 / Time 10 mins / TB Introduction p. 9

→ Cross-curricular link: HISTORY

This task introduces pupils to the topic of the Parthenon marbles and to the debate which follows in C. Returning the Parthenon Marbles.

Pre-reading

- Set the scene by explaining to pupils that the text refers to a television/radio programme dedicated to the petition of the Greek government for the return of the Parthenon Marbles. You may need to explain what a “telephone vote” is.
- Ask pupils if they know or remember from their History books what exactly happened with the Marbles. Where are the Marbles now? How can they be returned to Greece? How can people help to get them back?

While-reading

Individually. The pupils read silently. The aim is to see what the British Parliament in 1996 said about the Parthenon marbles.

Post-reading

- Pupils are asked to write down 2-3 lines to express their opinion on the issue; should the Marbles be returned or not and why?
- Pupils present their opinions in class. This way they get ready to participate in the debate that follows.

C. DEBATE: RETURNING THE MARBLES

Page 127 / Time 20 mins / TB Introduction p. 11

A debate is not an easy task for young pupils to carry out. It is therefore important to give precise instructions and explain what the aim of that task is.

- Set a time limit for the preparation of the arguments. Pupils may use L1 at that step.

- Explain that each group should have at least three arguments to support their cause. Their ideas should be written down.

ACTIVITY B in the Appendix, page 150, may give them some ideas.

- Move around the classroom and help when you are asked.
- Explain that they should talk in turns and listen to the chairperson.
- Pupils could vote and let the school know the results. They could also start a vote for all the pupils of the school and report the results to a local newspaper.

Differentiated Pedagogy (): See Appendix, page 150, Activity B

GRAMMAR FOCUS

Page 127 / Time 5 mins / TB Introduction p. 12

Design simple objects (a flower, a house) on the board to present and explain the phrases. The numbers on the Grammar Focus table help pupils relate the expressions to the position.

D. LISTENING

Page 127 / Time 10 mins / TB Introduction p. 10

→ Cross-curricular link: ART

Pre-listening

- Explain that they are going to hear the description of a painting, a piece of art. What is art for them? Why do they think people make paintings? Is it a way to say something to others?
- Ask them to have a careful look at Chagall's painting. What do they think it represents?

While-listening

Individually: They circle the items the teacher is describing.

The underlined words in the tapescript are the items pupils should circle.

Tapescript

Teacher: At the top of the painting you can see a church and some small houses. A woman and two of the houses stand upside-down. On the right there is a farmer's head coloured green. You can see his cap on the top right-hand corner. His eye, as you can see, is connected with a line to the cow's eye on the left. What does this line symbolize, really? Right in the middle of the cow's head there is a woman milking a cow. So we've got two cows in the painting. There's also a strange face at the top of the painting, in the church, and one more man below the houses. Don't you think that the picture is a bit strange?

Pupil: Yes, Miss. The painter remembers his village and he has so many things in his mind. Maybe he can't remember it very well.

Teacher: Mmm, I think he wants to tell us that his memories are nostalgic and magical, like in a fairy tale. Now, let's move to the bottom of the painting...look over here, children, the farmer is holding a small branch of tree....

Post-listening

In pairs, pupils check each other's answers with their partners.

E. ROLE-PLAY

Page 128 / Time 20 mins / TB Introduction p. 11

- Form groups of three or more pupils as it is not necessary to play the roles of Kostas, Nadine and Mark.
- Allow pupils 5 minutes for preparation. Pupils silently decide and tell their choice to their classmates during the role-play.
- Make sure they take turns so that all pupils speak.

F. PORTFOLIO

Page 128 / Time 30 mins

- Remind pupils of the conventions we follow to write a friendly letter. You can turn to page 124 (Task F) or ask them to go through the diary writing text of the Portfolio task. Explain that diary writing is not exactly letter writing but since you address someone / something, you have to keep your text communicative and provide information to your reader. More competent pupils may add anything they think it makes their diary more interesting.

Individually: Pupils work on their own. You go round the classroom and offer help if needed.

G. SPEAKING

Page 129 / Time 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 11

Pre-speaking

- Set the scene by reminding pupils that the 3 kids have visited many places in Greece. Ask questions like:
 - Do you remember where they went?
 - What impressed them most?
 - What food did they like?
- Set groups of three. Pupils do not keep notes.

While-speaking

- Pupils may arrange their seats and do the task seated or present their dialogues in class.
- You go around in class and help with the L2.

Post-speaking

Pupils can take the task a bit further by discussing the places they would like to visit but they didn't have time. Allow each group to talk about one or two more places.

LESSON 3 – MYTHS AND LEGENDS

Aims

- a. to connect the lesson with stories, tales and myths already familiar to pupils
- b. to introduce vocabulary related to mythical or fictional creatures and ancient civilizations
- c. to make pupils realize other cultural dimensions

A. LEAD-IN

Page 130/Time 15 mins

- Explain to pupils that myths and legends can be found in any human culture and civilization and people invent their heroes and gods as an imitation of their own life, dreams, fears etc.

- You may ask pupils to bring in class some information and pictures of the relevant myths. They may use the Internet, books, films. The following website could help you: www.iys.fi (International Youth Service).

B. READING

Page 130 / Time 15 mins / TB Introduction p. 9

Pre-reading

- Most pupils must have heard of Robin Hood. You can brainstorm on that hero asking questions like:
 - What is the hero's name in Greek?
 - Where did he live?
 - Why did people love him so much?
 - What weapon did he use?
- Ask pupils to read the beginning of the paragraphs in the task to understand what they have to look for in the text on page 152 of the Appendix.

While-reading

Tell pupils they can underline the relevant phrases while reading. Pupils read individually.

Post-Reading

- Pupils present their output in class. Brief discussion follows. You may need to explain some vocabulary.
- Class may watch a film or cartoon story.

C. PORTFOLIO

Page 130 / Time 30 mins

→ Cross-curricular link: GEOGRAPHY

- Set small groups of about 4-5 pupils. Assign one topic to each group.
- See Cultural Corner for information on the different cultures. Useful sites also include:

www.indians.org

www.crystalinks.com/incan.html

Differentiated pedagogy (*): Appendix Activity E on p. 152 offers a chance to less competent pupils to participate in the ancient civilizations project and also use their skills in drawing. Pupils work in pairs.

CULTURAL CORNER

Mark Chagall (1887-1985)

Russian painter and designer, one of the most important painters of the 20th century. In 1923 he moved to France where he spent the rest of his life. Fantasy and the world of dreams characterise his work.

Painted the year after Chagall came to Paris, I and the Village evokes his memories of his native community outside Vitebsk (today town of Belarus). In the village, peasants and animals lived side by side, in a mutual dependence here signified by the line from the peasant to cow, connecting their eyes. The peasant's flowering sprig symbolizes the tree of life. The painting's large circular forms suggest the orbiting sun, moon and earth.

Inca

Between 1200 and 1535 AD, the Inca population lived in the part of South America extending from the Equator to the Pacific coast of Chile. The Inca were warriors with a strong and powerful army. Because of the fierceness of their army and their hierarchical organization, they became the largest Native American society. The height of their reign in the 15th century came to a brutal end in 1535 when the Spanish conquistadors took over their territory.

The highest point in an Inca village was reserved for religious purposes. This point was the closest to the sun, which represented their major god, Inti, the Sun God. The Sun Temple, located in Machu Picchu, Peru, was a religious calendar that marked the winter and summer solstices.

The Inca were not only fierce conquerors but they also had a violent punishment system. If someone stole or murdered, they were thrown off a cliff, hands cut off or eyes cut out, or hung up to starve to death. Prisons were of no use because punishment usually consisted of death.

The Incas had an army which consisted of 40,000 people. The Spanish army in the Americas, which was commanded by Francisco Pizarro, had only 180 people. How could an Army of only 180 defeat an army of 40,000 men? There are three main reasons for this:

1) Much of the Incan army died as a result of smallpox, which was carried to them via the Spanish Conquistadors. 2) The Spanish Conquistadors were able to convince other tribes, already under Inca rule, to side with them and overthrow the Inca Empire. 3) The weapons used by Inca warriors, though effective in tribal warfare, were no match for the Spanish arms.

By 1535, the Inca society was completely overthrown, and Pizarro moved the capital from Cuzco to Lima.

The Aztecs/Mexicas

The Aztecs/Mexicas were the native American people who dominated northern México at the time of the Spanish conquest led by Hernan CORTES in the early 16th century. According to their own legends, they originated from a place called Aztlan, somewhere in north or northwest Mexico. Sometime in the 12th century they embarked on a period of wandering and in the 13th century settled in the central basin of México.

Continually dislodged by the small city-states that fought one another in shifting alliances, the Aztecs finally found refuge on small islands in Lake Texcoco where, in 1325, they founded the town of TENOCHTITLAN (modern-day Mexico City). The term Aztec, originally associated with the migrant Mexica, is today a collective term, applied to all the peoples linked by trade, custom, religion, and language to these founders.

Fearless warriors and pragmatic builders, the Aztecs created an empire during the 15th century that was surpassed in size in the Americas only by that of the Inca in Peru.

The yearly round of rites and ceremonies in the cities of Tenochtitlan and neighbouring Tetzaco, and their symbolic art and architecture, gave expression to an ancient awareness of the interdependence of nature and humanity.

The Aztecs remain the most extensively documented of all Amerindian civilizations at the time of European contact in the 16th century. Spanish friars, soldiers, and historians and scholars of Indian or mixed descent left invaluable records of all aspects of life. These ethno historic sources, linked to modern archaeological inquiries and studies of ethnologists, linguists, historians, and art historians, portray the formation and flourishing of a complex imperial state.

The Vikings

The term Viking commonly denotes the ship-borne warriors and traders of Norsemen (literally, men from the north) who originated in Scandinavia and raided the coasts of Britain, Ireland and mainland Europe as far east as the Volga River in Russia from the late 8th–11th century. This period (generally dated 793–1066) is often referred to as the Viking Age. The term Viking has also denoted entire populations of Viking Age Scandinavia and their settlements, as an expanded meaning.

Famed for their longships, Vikings founded settlements for three centuries along the coasts and rivers of mainland Europe, Ireland, Great Britain, Normandy, the Shetland, Orkney, and Faroe Islands, Iceland, Greenland, Newfoundland circa 1000. They reached south to North Africa and east to Russia and Constantinople, as looters, traders, or mercenaries. Viking voyages decreased with the introduction of Christianity to Scandinavia in the late 10th and 11th century.

The word Viking was introduced to the English language with romantic connotations in the 18th century. In current Scandinavian languages, the term Viking is applied to the people who went away on Viking expeditions be it for raiding or trading. In English and many other languages, Viking might refer to the Viking Age Scandinavians in general. The pre-Christian Scandinavian population is also referred to as Norse, although that term is properly applied to the whole civilization of Old-Norse speaking people.
